Leaders Still Progress

TODAY the world is rewarding leadership whether it be in an individual or in a business institution. Leaders still progress.

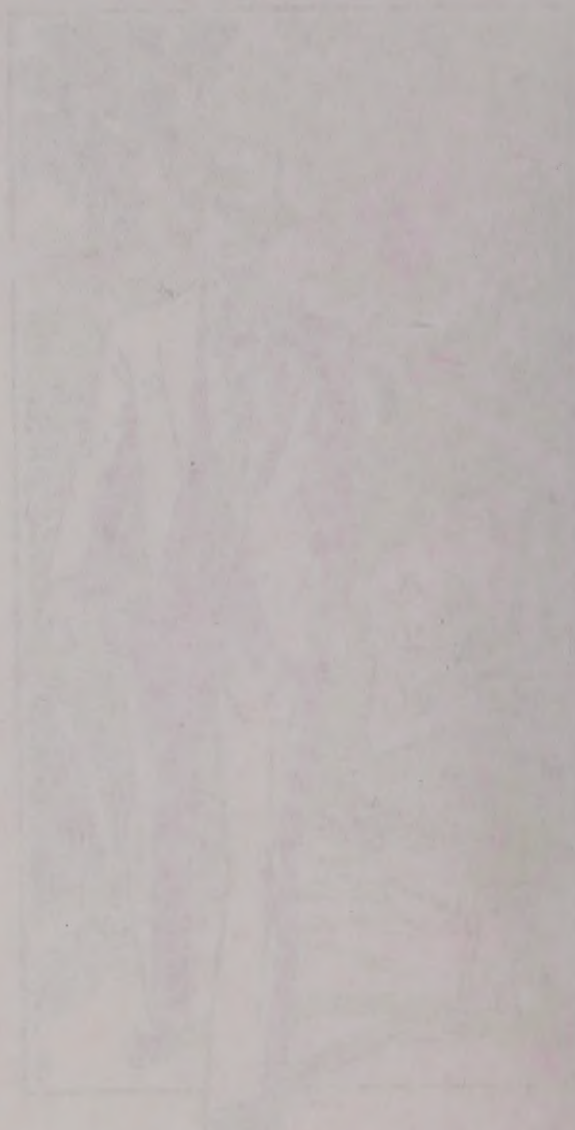
You, who are the potential leaders in the affairs of the world, demand a newspaper that is alert, modern, progressive . . . . a paper that, like each of you, is "going somewhere."

Perhaps that is a reason why one Lowell evening newspaper has gained over 170% in circulation in the last nine months—why it is "the fastest growing paper in town." Leaders still progress.

"The Better Evening Paper"

The Lowell

EVENING LEADER



A PERSONAL MESSAGE

from a L. H. S. Graduate of Yesteryear —

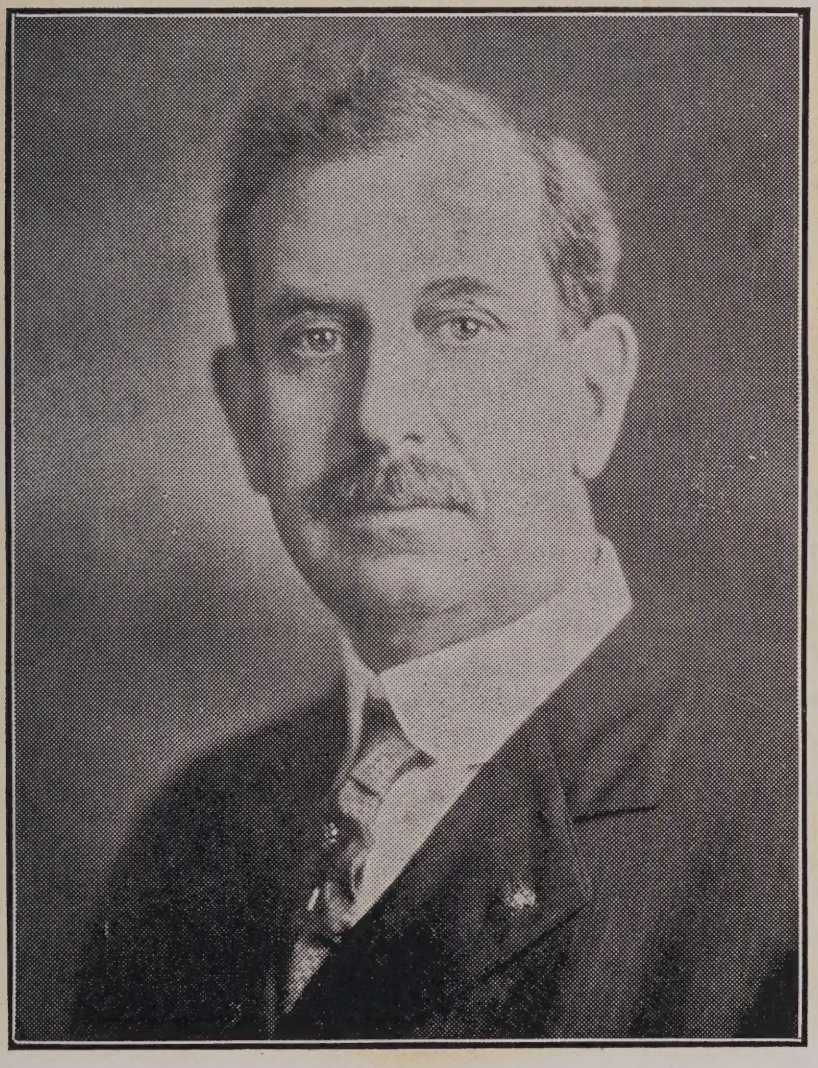
GRADUATION . . . . and then what? For many of you it will mean a continuation of studies in higher schools of learning, and for others, that text books will be laid aside. You are going out to make a place for yourself in this world which is yours. You will no longer rub elbows daily with many of your school acquaintances. New friendships will be formed. Your future education will depend to a large extent upon information gleaned from reading daily newspapers.

Choose your friends and your reading material wisely. Your success depends, in large measure, upon how well you select both. Form the habit of reading a good daily newspaper, particularly the editorials and current news. The news of the day keeps you posted on what is going on in your community and throughout the world. Editorials enable you to benefit from the thought of more mature minds. In Lowell, we suggest that you read the Courier-Citizen whose editor ranks among the best in the country and who is one of the most frequently quoted.

Lowell Courier-Citizen

DEDICATION

to



HENRY HALE HARRIS

. . . who well has earned our candid respect and outspoken gratitude . . we dedicate this humble memoir.

Foreword

THE Lowell Evening Leader is happy to have had the privilege of sponsoring this Year Book of the Class of 1934 of the Lowell High School and lending whatever assistance it could in its preparation and publication.

Because of the uncertain times, it was felt inadvisable to have the Senior Class assume the financial responsibility entailed in an undertaking of this magnitude. The Leader, rather than have this priceless memorial of happy school years go by default, volunteered to underwrite the expenses of publication.

Without the active and sustained cooperation of the Year Book Committee, headed by Winfield A. Hird, Chairman, who has worked unceasingly for several months on the project, the present book would never have seen the light of day. To the members of the faculty who contributed their time and sage counsel to the youthful editors, the Leader is also grateful.

The Evening Leader has consistently supported all worthwhile educational projects, including those of an extra-curricular nature. If the 1934 Year Book, long after the glamour of the graduation of the Class of 1934 shall have passed, brings a few hours of fond recollection to the members of that class or helps to keep alive student friendships now so dear, the newspaper will feel that the effort has been distinctly worthwhile.

CHARLES E. GALLAGHER,
Managing Editor.

Introduction

GRADUATION brings to an end a long career of school days and with it the end of a long list of juvenile experiences and friendships created and cherished during some twelve long and glorious years of school. In future years it will be a pleasant diversion to glance back on our high school days and to revive memories of a time when we were in the prime of adolescent and idealistic youth. With this thought foremost in mind this memoir has been compiled and presented to the members of the class of '34. If, in years to come, this tabloid is found of real though immaterial value to its possessors our purpose will have been fulfilled.

To the Lowell EVENING LEADER whose interest in us and whose financial backing has made possible the production of this year book we owe a sincere vote of thanks and appreciation.

To all those who have been our classmates and who have lived and dreamed and hoped in unison with us through four past years of high school we wish the best of luck. May our paths meet again.

WINFIELD A. HIRD,
Chairman, Year Book Committee.

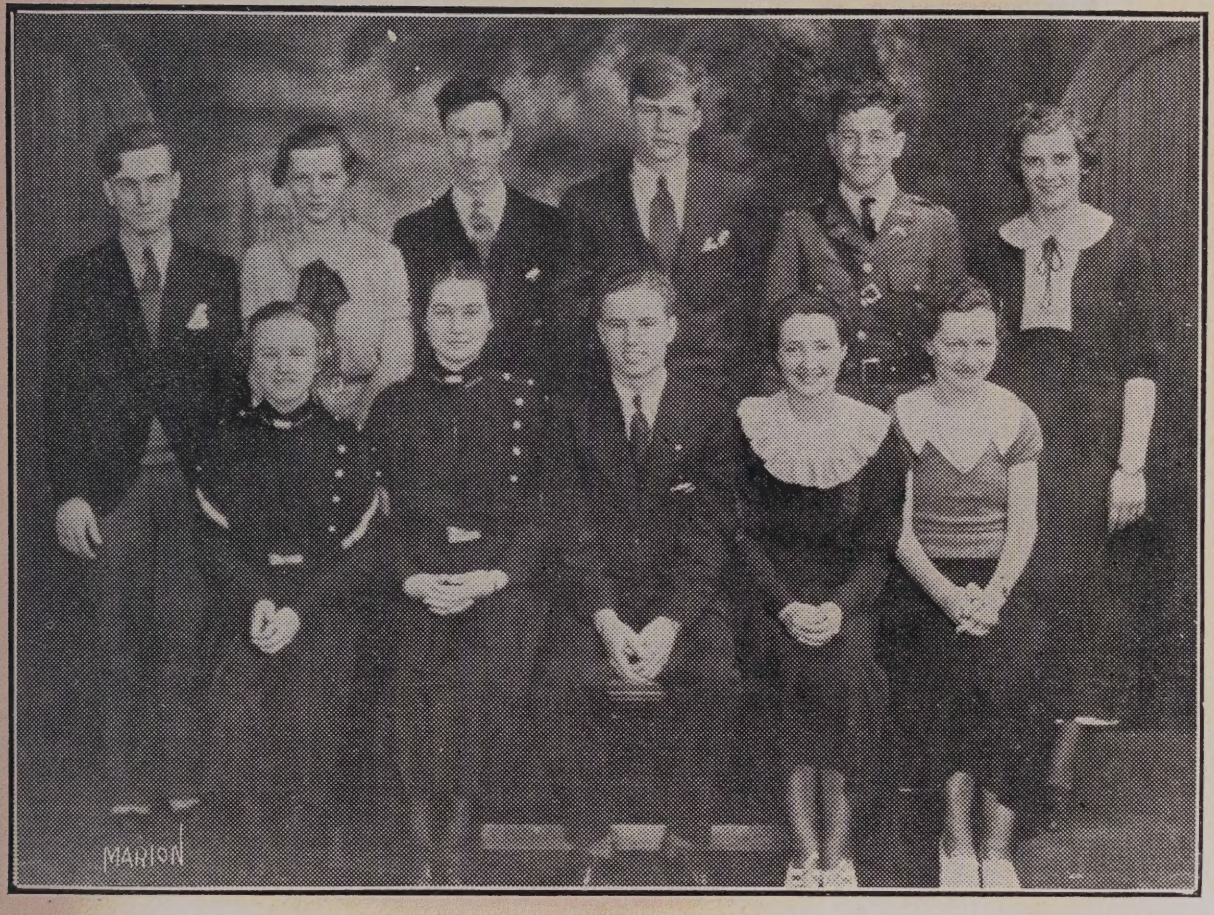
Year Book Committee



Left to right—Front row: Isabelle Wholey, Louise Healey, Winfield A. Hird, chairman; Claire Tuttle, Rita V. Healey.

Rear row: Raymond Cordeau, Rita Perreault, Bernard Lemaire Rondeau, John Silin, Alfred G. Marshall, Eleanor Laurie.

Senior Class

Rear row: John Silin, first vice president, and Eleanor Laurie, secretary.

The senior class has had a most successful year under the guidance of Alfred G. Marshall, president, John Silin, first vice president; Isabel Wholey, second vice president; Eleanor Laurie, secretary; and Rita Perreault, treasurer. Beside the regular class meetings, movies and refreshments and fine entertainments have been given. Senior night this year was a huge success as was the Senior Prom which drew the attendance of more than half the senior class.

The class gift to the school consisted of typewriters for the Newswriting class and a Ditto machine for the Commercial Department. Although the class included more than 800 members this year, it has been one of the best in the history of the school.

The Review Staff

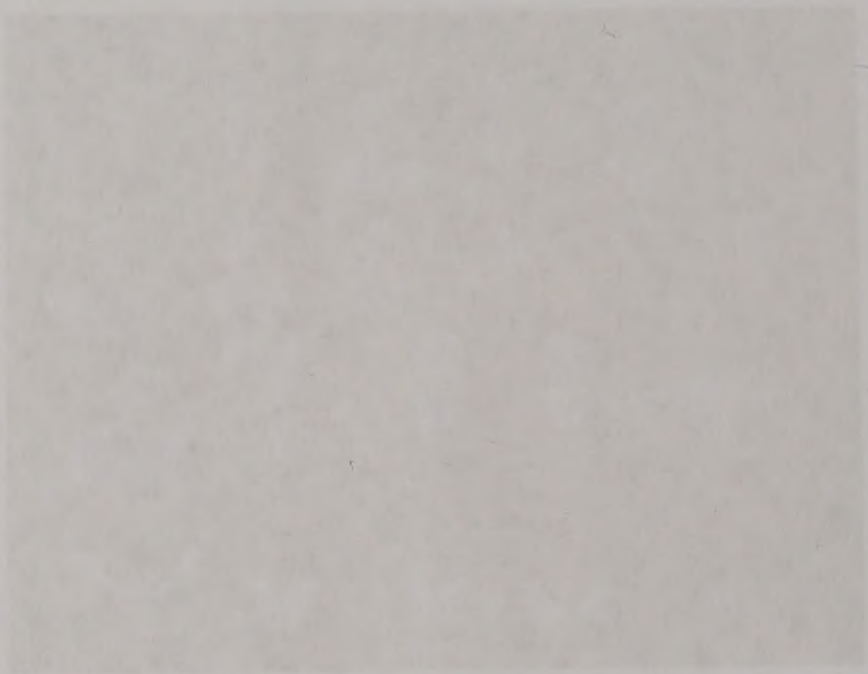
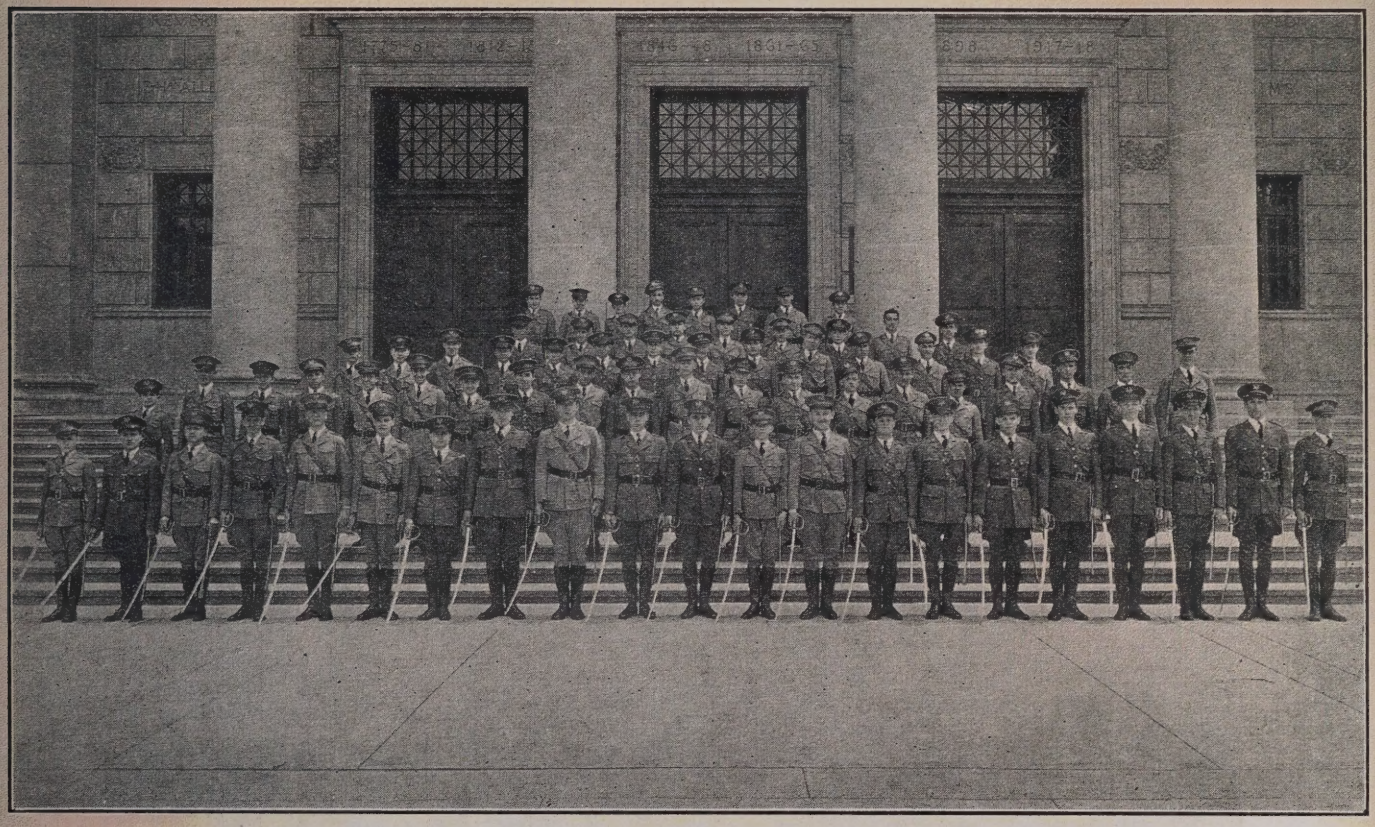
This year's Review Staff is fittingly characterized as a progressive one. In numbers, the staff was considerably enlarged. The quality of material was commented on very favorably by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association and the members of the staff introduced feature contests, offering attractive prizes to the winners. Through its editor, the staff members hand to their successors the challenge to better this year's position in the Columbia Contest for school publications throughout the United States. The new editor is Richard J. Nolan and he has an efficient and large corps of workers.



Officers of Boys' Regiment



Officers of Girls' Battalions

Girls' Battalion Majors

Left to right: first major, RUTH I. ALMSTROM; second major, DOROTHY K. DONOVAN; third major, ELEANOR M. SULLIVAN, fourth major, HELEN Q. PARKER.

Merrimack Chapter, National Honor Society

Rear row: LOUISE TENNBERG, secretary, and CLAIRE TUTTLE, treasurer.

The desired goal of many students is election into the Merrimack chapter of the National Honor Society, one of the highest honors in the power of the school to bestow. This year the chapter numbers sixty-seven seniors and twenty-six juniors. The seniors were among the highest fifteen per cent of their class and the juniors were among the highest five per cent of their class, all excelling in scholarship, character, leadership and service.

Science Club

SCIENCE CLUB OFFICERS

Rear row: VIRGINIA MCFADDEN, secretary, and RUSSELL CUNNINGHAM, treasurer.

The school year of 1933-34 has proved outstanding for the Science Club. At the close of the year its membership totaled 160 members of which 103 were recorded as paid-up.

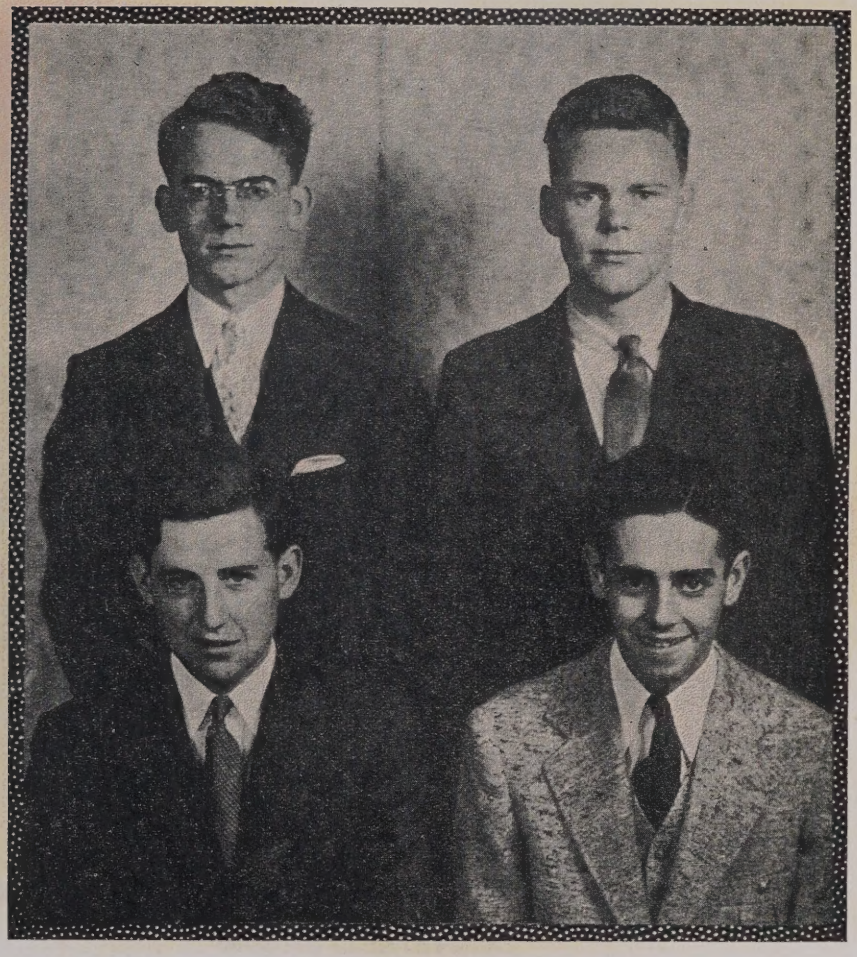
The club's record membership has been well supplemented by a very active year. The club's outstanding achievement was the presentation of Mischa Tulin, noted Russian-American musician and scientist, and his Theremin to the entire school free of charge.

Among the other activities of the club were the presentations of Donald Bain, noted bird and animal imitator, and Chief Po-can-ti-co, Indian lecturer. The club also sponsored trips to M. I. T., radio station W E E I, Harvard University, the Chelmsford Ginger Ale Co., the Lowell Gas Light plant, the Lowell Electric Light plant, the Courier-Citizen, and the local plant of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Among the speakers secured by the club were Melvin Master, city milk inspector, John Sheehan, graduate of Amherst College, John Stack, aeronautical engineer, Dudley L. Page, local confectionery manufacturer and Civil War veteran, Harvey B. Greene, well known local florist and an expert on the glacial period, and Philip Mahoney, William O'Brien and Kenneth Goward of the high school faculty.

The organization wound up the year by presenting pins to the members at its annual banquet and by giving $20 to the library on Honor Day as the club's gift to the school.

German Club



GERMAN CLUB OFFICERS

Rear row: LOUIS ORRELL, treasurer, and JAMES KILLPARTRICK, vice president.

The German Club was unusually successful during the past school year. At Christmas time, baskets were sent to needy people. Perhaps the most unusual event ever staged in the school was the pet show held in Colburn Hall.

The officers of the organization for the year were: Nathan Shuster, president; William DeMallie, vice president; Louis Orrell, treasurer; Clifford White, secretary; James Killpartrick, Sergeant-at-arms; Miss Frances U. Masterson, faculty advisor.

Spanish Club

SPANISH CLUB OFFICERS

Rear row: Lillian Louf, secretary, and Hugh Rogers, treasurer.

This year the Spanish Club has proved most successful under the direction of Mr. Cornell and four capable officers. Meetings were held nearly every week during the year. Many forms of entertainment were procured. Two Spanish plays were dramatized by a cast composed completely of members.

Senorita Conchita Nones, a young woman from Puerto Rico, aroused the interest of every club member with her entertaining talk.

The Spanish Club was one of the few clubs this year to make money on its dance. Some of the profit was spent on the social held at the Y. M. C. A. for members only.

This year's officers were: president, Alice Barry; vice president, George Dinopoulos; secretary, Lillian Louf, and treasurer, Hugh Rogers.

The Dramatic Club

DRAMATIC CLUB OFFICERS

Rear row: Jennie Gass, secretary, and Bernard L. Rondeau, treasurer.

The Lowell High School Dramatic Club is one of the most outstanding in the school. It is an organization devoted to the furtherance of every branch of dramatics and has become widely known through its activity. This club is the sponsor of the annual Prize Speaking Contest, an event which is open to every pupil of the L. H. S. with one year of public speaking. The Dramatic Club raises its own funds for the donation of $30 worth of prizes. Monthly meetings are held at which entertainment, and a well known speaker are presented to a large audience composed entirely of members. The President has headed an exceptionally fine club this year. The officers are as follows: president, Virginia Calnan; vice president, Rita V. Healey; treasurer, Bernard L. Rondeau; secretary, Jennie Gass.

The HI-Y Club

The Lowell Hi-Y Club numbering 93 members and taking for its motto, "To create, maintain and extend throughout the school and community the highest standards of Christian character," has been very active this year. Among other things it presented the Red and Gray Book, furthered school spirit during the football season, conducted two successful cake sales and four dances, and took a leading part in all Mystic Valley and State Conferences. Its track, swimming and basketball teams dominated the Mystic Valley Conferences. Its bowling team was also active. The officers for 1933-34 were: Robert B. Healy, president; Paul Smith, first vice president; Jack Newton, second vice president; Winfield Hird, secretary; George Cummings, treasurer and Walter Robinson, assistant secretary.

HI-Y AND TRI-HI CLUB OFFICERS

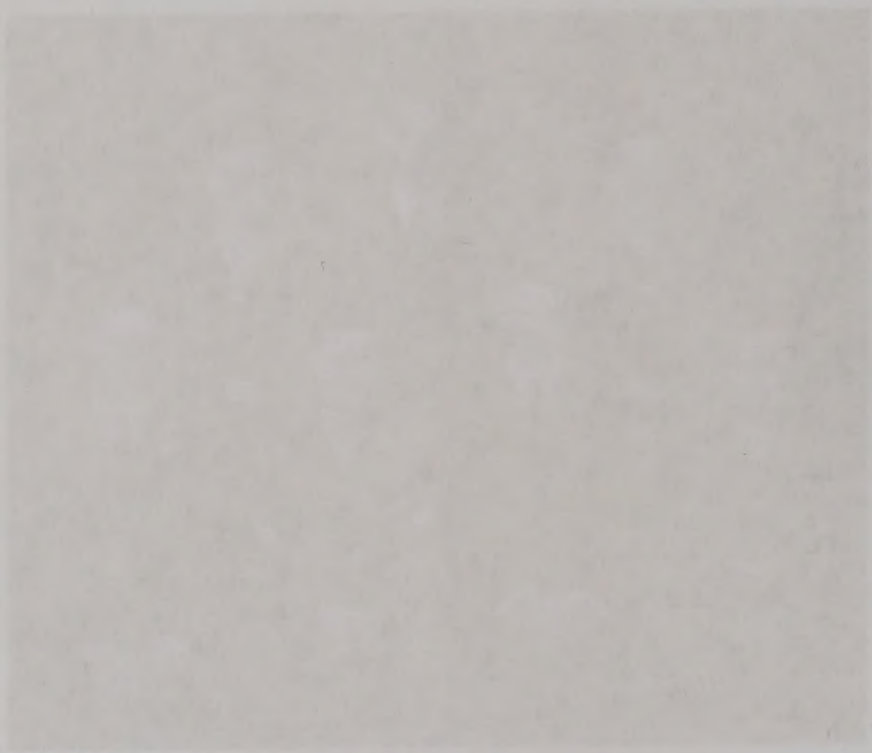
Rear Row: Dorothy McDermott, vice president, Tri-Hi; George Cummings, treasurer, Hi-Y; and Eleanor Loupret, secretary, Tri-Hi.

The TRI-HI Club

The Tri-Hi endeavors not only to organize a club to promote social understanding among girls, but to also do charity work for the less fortunate. Some of the activities of the club this last season have been a Mothers' and Daughters' banquet, a play and many other social activities. This year the club has been so fortunate in its financial affairs that it is planning to contribute a small amount to the Y. W. C. A. for the use of its rooms.



Lowell High School Savings System

LOWELL HIGH SCHOOL BANK TRUSTEES

Rear row: JOSEPH M. DONOGHUE, faculty advisor, GEORGE KENNISTON, WALLACE THOMSON, WILLIAM JARACZ, WILLIAM DRENDEL, and WILLIAM ELLIS.

This year has been the most active for the trustees of the Lowell High School Savings System. When the bank opened in November, representatives from each home room were chosen. Their object was to secure new depositors. This campaign was very successful as the number of new depositors brought in during the year was approximately 400, this figure being unusually high.

In January a bank drive was conducted to further interest the pupils. A slogan contest was also held. The winning slogan was "Systematic Saving Signifies Sound Success."

Recently the bank sponsored a "Questionnaire" which was received with great enthusiasm by the students. The prizes were a Duo-Fold pen and pencil set, a pearl necklace, a radio ornament and a two pound box of chocolates. The trustees relinquished their duties on June 11.

Musical Organizations

BAND

One of the most active and appreciated groups in the high school is the regimental band, which is made up of about seventy-five boys, under the direction of John J. Giblin. The unit made one of its first appearances of the year when it accompanied the regiment in the N. R. A. parade. Also, during the football season, it accompanied the rooters of the L. H. S. squad with its cheering music. Throughout the school year the band has played at many of the assemblies, notably the Memorial day assembly. On May 12, this organization entered a state contest at Melrose and came home with a "superior" rating. On May 27, the band escorted the regiment to the Memorial Auditorium. On the following Thursday, Field day, the parade was enlivened by its martial music. The band also played music for the various performances throughout the afternoon. Saturday, June 2, found it at the New England Music Festival at Hampton Beach where it received second place with a ranking of "excellent." The following Sunday it marched in a Masonic parade at Concord. These many honors show that Lowell high school has a band of which it may well be proud.

ORCHESTRA

Another active branch of the musical department is the Lowell High Orchestra which is supervised by Miss Gertrude F. O'Brien. This organization is divided into two groups, one the junior orchestra, made up of new members, and the senior orchestra, for members more advanced in music. Many assemblies have been brightened by the appearance of the orchestra. The annual play by the dramatic classes was opened by an overture by this group. On May 12, the orchestra entered the state contest and received a marking of "excellent."

CHORUS and GLEE CLUB

The chorus and glee club form the third portion of the musical "triple entente." This is under the personal direction of Miss Ruth J. Boulger and is supervised by Miss Gertrude F. O'Brien. The outstanding appearance of the year of these choral groups is the annual vaudeville and minstrel shows. Other performances have been put on at the school assemblies and for the Seton Guild. This group was also one of the two school groups chosen to sing at the New England Music Festival at Hampton Beach.

By ANNA L. CADIGAN

Ruth Abbott of 5 Parkview avenue came to us from the Moody school. She is a member of the Tri Hi and Dramatic Clubs, and is also a member of the National Honor Society. Swimming is her favorite sport and hobby. Ruth will attend Mt. Holyoke college.
